place, and formerly connected with the U. S. Consulate of Honolulu, is reported to have recently died Good Words from KAU .- The Hon. W. T. Martin, at Waiohinu, reports that during the quarter ending March 31st, the births in his district have been twenty-six, against twelve deaths only. SERVICES AT THE LYCEUM.-Professor Moore will conduct religious services at the Lyceum on Nuuanu Avenue this evening at half-past 7; and to-morrow (Sunday) morning at the Bethel at 11 o'clock-unless the steamer from Australia should arrive.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE .- Our attention has been called to the reckless practice of some-strangers and seamen-of racing on horseback up and down Nuuanu Avenue, which they seem to think is out of town. A few arrests might prove salutary, and prevent otherwise probable accidents.

MEATS ON ICE.-We had some mutton-chops for breakfast the other day that were deliciously tender. They were eight days old. Kept in an ice-chest at Boyd's Family Market, meats are infinitely better for being preserved thus for a few days after the animal

TIDAL WAVE .- Letters from Hawaii report the occurrence on the Eastern Coast, April 11th, of something like a tidal wave; but we have not received particulars. At Hauula, on this island, on the same day, the sea came up and overflowed taro patches, and several canoes were carried inland and broken by Nettie Merrill tried his luck at fishing on the last ium, and he was "bisted abord."

MUSIC THIS AFTERNOON .- The band will commence playing at Emma Square at 5 o'clock. Following is the programme : Wagner ber Me, Polka Mazurka..... Potpourri, Opera, Orpheus.....

DELETERIOUS ENTERPRISE .- A correspondent writing from West Maui on the subject of " home enterprise and home industries," says incidentally-" The manufacture of okolehao from molasses, prickly-pear, and water-melon, and swipes of sweet-potatoes, is very ingeniously performed all over the country, and to a very large extent, more than their Excellencies the Ministers ever dream of; but that ingenuity of distilling processes is of very little benefit to the islands, unless you, like some New Zealand editors, consider the rapid extinction of the native race as equivalent to a blessing."

REFUSED DUTY .- Some twenty of the crew of the whaleship Cornelius Howland, while lying at Hilo, refused duty, unless their demand for more liberty on shore was complied with. Captain Homan had them arrested and locked up, and after some talk with Captain Spencer the U. S. Vice-Consul, ten of the men returned to duty and the remainder were put on board in irons. At the request of Capt. Homan, the steamer Kilauca, which happened to be at Hilo, towed the ship to sea. She arrived here on the 25th ult., and the difficulty with the crew was adjusted and the vessel sailed on her voyage to the Arctic. She has done well on her voyage out, reporting 450

sperm and 100 whale oil in eight months. SHREWD SMUGGLERS .- The Chinese are known sometimes to out-wit the Custom House guards and the police-and how often they do it without its being known is a subject for conjecture. Recently on the arrival of a steamer, a canoe load of watermelons went alongside, and some of the fruit that had been passed on deck, was, after a time, returned into the canoe by Chinese passengers, who will nevertheless be available and useful, for the intimated that they did not desire to purchase them. It afterwards transpired that the insides of those melous had been carefully scooped out, the cavity filled with boxes of opium and the rind put heatly together again, when the "no goodee meion" a high board fence, which is provided with gates, was taken on shore. PROBABLE MANSLAUGHTER ON HAWAII .-- A letter from Mr. S. K. Kaai, Deputy Sheriff of North Kona, says that on the 15th of April, at Kaloko, near Kailua, a native named Kamaka bad a dispute with one Wahineaea, who assaulted him. After the assault, Kamaka got on his mule and rode about half a mile and fell off, and was picked up insensible. He died on the 21st. A coroner's jury was impanueled, who returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased was a sickly man, and had received at the hands of Wahineaea. The editorial of April 29 latter was arrested, and the case was to be investigated by the magistrate. RAMIE .- It is well known that the Ramie plant, which furnishes an excellent material for textile fabrics, flourishes exceedingly in these islands, and it has been more or less cultivated; but the difficulty Honolulu Saturdays and Lahaina every Wednesdays. has been to properly clean the fibre for shipment. We tion, which it is confidently believed when finished will answer the desired purpose. If it shall prove a success, the cultivation of Ramie will at once spring into importance in various localities on the islands where it has already been tried with satisfactory results, and a valuable addition will be made to our list of products for exportation.

In the southwestern part of France there is a beautiful city in the centre of a pine forest, where less than a century ago a waste of ocean sand was piled mountain high. In the beginning, the moving sands near the beach were planted with pines, which flourished in spite of the unstable nature of their foundation. NAVAL - Yesterday P. M. arrived the Imperial German corvette Arcong, commanded by the Baron ven Reibnitz, 24 days from Hakedadi. Shortly after her arrival she saluted the Hawaiian flag, and afterwards exchanged salutes with the ship of the away and leave the King without foreign protection,

> A DARING BURGLARY .- Yesterday morning on opening the store of Dillingham & Co. on King street. it was discovered that the place had been in the occupancy of burglars during the night, the back door being open, near which a piece of candle was found still burning. On further examination of the premises it was ascertained that the burglar or burglars had effected an entrance through the roof-to which access is easy from the roof of the adjoining buildingby removing the slates and boring with an inch bitt a square hole through the boarding. From thence to the floor of the first story, descent would be easy by means of a cord. Singularly enough, no plunder of consequence was obtained, the only articles missed being two small revolvers, a package of cartridges of too large a size for the pistols, and two fob-chains, which were taken from a showcase. The burglar was evidently a bungler, for with all his boring and with a store full of tools at his command, he failed to open any money drawers. It is fortunate that he was not malicious as well as mischievous, otherwise his disappointment in not obtaining plunder might have led to arson as well as burglary. But the boldness and skill displayed in entering the premises, are in marked contrast with the lack of skill evident after getting inside. The Marshal has offered a reward of $100 for information that will lead to the acrest of the

A considerable and neverfailing stream of water runs through the whole land, furnishing ample water-power. Contiguous to the land is a deep, well-sheltered schooner harbor, with a good boat landing. The native land holders in the vicinity have about 200 acres of good cane land, and are very desirous of going into the business of planting on halves, as soon as the erection of a mill is assured. Mr. Bal, (who has already laid out nearly $10,000 on the place in improvements, labor, &c., including a flume, 24 miles long) proposes to form a company for the cultivation and manufacture of sugar at Moanui, with 250 shares at $100 each. As soon as two-thirds of the shares are subscribed, a meeting will be called for the purpose of organization. Mr. Bal is well known for industry, energy and activity, and we wish him every success in his new

> THE NEW GOVERNMENT WAREHOUSES .- The Gazette | may arise from the undertaking about to be entered of this week in an article descriptive of the new warehouses for island produce at the steamship wharf, makes the error of stating that they were and iron from the producing district to the river planned by Mr. Stirling, to whom they are a credit. Mr. Stirling is an estimable gentleman and a good architect, but he had no more to do with the plan- to render the national arsenals independent of forening of those warehouses than did the editor of the Gazette, for they were not thought of until after he left the country. And whatever credit is due in the matter belongs to Mr. Robert Lishman, who planned and superintended the whole. The two warehouses are built of coral stone, side by side, are fire-proof, and are nearly of a size, say 50 x 100 feet. The reason for building two structures instead of one large one, was that it was intended, while the manka one should be devoted exclusively to the uses of the steamship agents, the makai one was designed for the reception of island produce generally, in which could be stored sugar, etc., upon which the government had made advances under provisions of the loan act of the last session. The accomplishment of reciprocity will probably render unnecessary the provisions of the act in this particular, but the store-house storage of produce and the accommodation of coasters and shipping generally, on payment of a small rate of storage. The whole premises, to the edge of the dock on each side, are surrounded by the object being to keep ont vehicles, and idlers at night while the steamers are in port, and to guard against infractions of the revenue laws. These new warehouses have cost the government a pretty round sum, but they are in the nature of needed and valuable public improvements. THE PUNAHOU MIRROR.-We have received the two first numbers of this fortnightly journal edited by the scholars at Punahou College. It is full of interesting matter, and is a credit to its conductors. that his death was hastened by the treatment he We clip the following pertinent remarks from its

They do not feel so any more. The visit of the King was accepted by the press and the people as a compliment to our nation, and only one return seemed appropriate, under the circumstances. That was made promptly. Fears have been expressed that some of our industries will be injuriously affected by reciprocity with Hawaii, but time alone can tell whether they are well founded, and whether they will outweigh the benefits to result in other directions. We hope that experience will approve the policy adopted by the Government. The main benefits to accrue to the Islands from the treaty, may not be felt until time has given confidence in the permanence of the market thus opened for the Hawaiian sugars. Then there will be a great demand for all the moist and fertile lands near the level of the sea, and an influx of men with capital and skill, desirous of engaging in the sugar business, and a change from stagnation to activity in the kanaka population generally. Wealth will abound and luxurious homes will be numerous-places that will become the favorite resorts for the relatives and friends of the fortunate owners of large estates. The revenue and shipping of the Kingdom will multiply, and many persons will come to California from the coast of the Atlantic for the purpose of seeing Hawaii, and others who come to visit this State will make a little incidental trip to the tropical islands.

Opening China The existence of vast coal-fields and abundant de-

of material wealth remaining undeveloped. It would now appear, however, that the Chinese government is at last waking up to the importance of utilising the mineral treasures the soil of the country affords in almost unlimited profusion. It has been determined to open up coal mines and establish iron works in the southern part of the metropolitan province of Chihli, and the official who administers the affairs of that province has commissioned Mr. Henderson, a gentleman who has had thirty years' residence in China, to order the necessary plant for carrying out the undertaking and engage skilled persons to supervise it. We understand that Mr. Henderson is now in England engaged in carrying out these instructions. At present, scientific mining is unknown in China, and although iron has been manufactured there for ages, the smelting and other processes employed are of the most primitive kind. The introduction of proved machinery and scientific metho's and experience can scarcely fail to exercise a great influence on the future development of Chipa, a country teeming with an intelligent and industrious population said to constitute one-fourth of the human race. Indeed, it is impossible to foretell what results upon. One will be the construction of a railway, the first in the country, which is to convey the coal down which it will be taken to Tientsin. The immediate object of the Chinese Government is, it seems, ign supplies of coal and iron, which are only obtained, at great expense. But when once mining and manufacturing operations are commenced in the district before referred to, they will rapidly spread to others, and it is impossible to set limits to the development of an industry where the conditions of success-abundance of coal and iron in close proximity and cheap and boundless labor-are so favorable. We may anticipate that the time is not far distant when these the virgin coal-fields of China will be yielding their fossil wealth in abundance; and but one result can follow, the cheapening of coal in the markets of the world. The ships that now carry that indispensable commodity from the South Wales ports and Liverpool to California, a distance of some 20,000 miles, may then find their occupation gone, for California will be able to draw her supplies from source 14,000 miles nearer home. Thus the development of national resources in China may affect our commercial interests in one direction, but we may hope to find in her a new and large customer for those mechanical appliances which are required for mining and manufacturing operations. It is manifest that "Opening China," as the current phrase is, by whatever means, may result in an exension of our trade relations; and thus, looking at the thing from a strictly commercial and perhaps selfish point of view, we can but rejoice at every advance towards such a desirable consummation .-British Trade Journal for March.
